"The eclipse falls in the ninth house of the London map and is near the meridian and thus affects shipping and sea traffic in various parts of the world; also religion; and the Monarch, Presidents, the Government, Royalty, eminent persons, national trade, the national credit, reputation and power. Mercury is ruler of the midheaven in the eclipse map, and is in opposition to Jupiter and Uranus. This denotes much excitement, unexpected troubles and mysterious crimes. Religion and the churches will be much criticised, and education will suffer. Frauds and swindles of various kinds will be heard of.

"Mars ruler of the ascendant is fortunately well placed in Libra in trine aspect to Uranus; this denotes a strong government who will successfully overcome many difficulties."

"Accepting the accompanying map as his horoscope we find the ruler Mercury protected by the sextile aspect of Jupiter, and the Saturnine influence modified by Jupiter in trine to Saturn. The following was said of him in the Royal Number:—

"'The very strong position of the Czar's ruling planet Mercury 'in its own sign and elevated above all the other planets, and the 'conjunction of the Moon with Jupiter, has preserved him from 'many dangers. King George may be able to obtain some very 'satisfactory advantage from his planetary positions, and an alliance with Russia would not be a difficult feat to accomplish.'

"From this horoscope we should judge very poor success in naval welfare. He has not a very fortunate horoscope, and can only hope to be successful in warfare if supported by other nations morally or otherwise. His dominion is too large for his influence, in which probably lies his safety."

"A good judge of human nature, active, practical, fond of approval and display. He will have a tragic end.

"In this case Mars, the ruling planet of King George's nativity, is near the ascendant of the King of Italy. The harmonious tendencies between these two nativities are lacking, and agreement is hardly possible between them."

"The Queen of Holland was born with the Sun in conjunction with Uranus in the seventh house; she had also Mars in conjunction with Venus. Fortunately the Moon was in her own sign Cancer and in good aspect with these planets.

"Having not less than six planets angular, the Queen of Holland will be popular. Her daughter has already quite won the hearts of the Dutch people, and with the Moon placed where it is in the Queen's nativity, strong and well aspected in the fifth house, students of Astrology will not wonder."

"Already two attempts have been made upon the life of the King of Spain, whose horoscope denotes grave liability to 'accidents,' the signs of violence being many:—Mars upon the ascendant, the Moon in Scorpio the house of Mars, Venus in the house of Mars and in the eighth house, the house of death, Saturn in square to Uranus and Venus, and finally Venus in opposition to Uranus.

"The character of the King of Spain, as shown in the nativity, is passionate, hard, determined, proud, conventional and self-assertive. He has gained considerably by his marriage. His wife can be a great blessing to him."
